Jewell Hires Gary Dudman as New Sales Manager

Jewell Instruments is pleased to announce that Gary Dudman has joined the team as the new Sales Manager taking over the position vacated by Don Descoteaux after his promotion to Vice President of Marketing and Sales. Gary will be responsible for all aspects of Jewell Sales for the Inertial Sensor, Avionic Instrumentation and Solenoid product lines.

Gary comes to Jewell with an extensive background in Sales, Engineering and Operations. Beginning his career at Spaulding Composites, he held many positions including Engineer, Engineering Manager and Technical Marketing & Sales Specialist. He continued his career at Eptam Plastics as Operations Manager where he became a Six Sigma Black Belt and excelled in his leadership of numerous process improvement projects. After Eptam, Gary joined a small start-up company, Diaphorm Technologies, as Sales Manager. Here his technical, leadership and organizational skills came together laying the foundation and providing innovation essential to the success of Diaphorm.

Gary brings vast real-world knowledge with a leadership style focused on team building and effective communication. These qualities will support Jewell's philosophies and goals and will help to ensure our future success.
