Press Release January 2010

Gary Dudman Becomes Business Unit Manager for Triplett Test Equipment & Tools Line

Jewell Instruments is pleased to announce that Gary Dudman has accepted the position of Business Unit Manager for the Jewell product line of Triplett Test Equipment & Tools. Gary will oversee all aspects of Triplett sales for the test equipment and tools product line.

Gary has been with Jewell since 2007 when he accepted the position of Sales Manager for the Jewell Avionics, Sensors and Solenoids. After the successful focus of growing these lines, he agreed to take over the Triplett line and help bring this line to a new level of recognition and success.

Gary came to Jewell with an extensive background in Sales, Engineering and Operations. Beginning his career at Spaulding Composites, he held many positions including Engineer, Engineering Manager and Technical Marketing & Sales Specialist. He continued his career at Eptam Plastics as Operations Manager where he became a Six Sigma Black Belt and excelled in his leadership of numerous process improvement projects. After Eptam, Gary joined a small start-up company, Diaphorm Technologies, as Sales Manager. Here his technical, leadership and organizational skills came together laying the foundation and providing innovation essential to the success of Diaphorm.

Gary brings vast real-world knowledge with a leadership style focused on team building and effective communication. These qualities will support Jewell's philosophies and goals and will help to ensure our future success.
